Drexel professor after 'beer-literate' students

University City. Lynn Hoffman says domestics don't stand a chance in craft beer world.

Lynn Hoffman thinks we as a society underestimate beer in our culture.

"When I tell people I teach a course in beer, half the people laugh," said Hoffman, author of "Short Course in Beer," "because our cultural associations with beer includes Sunday football games and college kids."

Philadelphia, he said, does have a good brewing history. "We do have a neighborhood called Brewerytown, for God's sake."

For the last 15 years Hoffman has taught courses at Drexel University on wine, spirits and beer. But this fall, for the first time, he's teaching a course just on beer.

The 10-week course, titled "Fundamentals of Beer," will cover beer history, how it's made, how it's sold and its place in the modern world. He'll hold the class at the bar and lounge on campus.

Hoffman said Philadelphia, becoming more and more well-known for its craft-beer scene, is the perfect backdrop for the course with the beer market in the country shrinking at about 2 percent a year, while the craft beer market is going up.

Lynn Hoffman, author of "Short Course in Beer," enjoys a craft beer at his home in Northwest Philadelphia. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER, METRO

"So this Mr. Bud and Mr. Miller are losing share of a declining market," he said. "And the people they are losing it to are these funny folks in the flannel shirts and the porkpie hats who are making this radical thing — beer with flavor."

He went on to say that putting flavor in beer costs money though. "And a lot of what makes beer so cheap in America is cheap ingredients — corn and rice. If you want flavor in beer you … go for barley malt and wheat."

Paul Rutherford, head brewer at Iron Hill Brewery in Chestnut Hill, said the older generations had chosen one generic domestic brand and stuck with it. The younger generation is more adventurous. "I think IPA is like a standard beer for the 22-year-old kid these days."

Hoffman agrees with that. "I want our students at Drexel to be beer-literate. Which means understanding what beer means in our culture right now."

Fern Rock. Two dead in nightclub shooting

Two men were killed and two others were injured during a quadruple shooting early Sunday morning at an after-hours nightclub, according to police.

A 26-year-old man, who was shot in the back, and a 39-year-old man shot three times in the chest, were both pronounced dead at Albert Einstein Medical Center.

The other two men — ages 39 and 41 — were in stable condition at press time.

Reports say gunfire erupted shortly after midnight among motorcycle gang members. As of press time, no arrests had been made.

The club is inside the Tiny Learning Academy learning center building. METRO

5 Tips to Remember to Avoid Being a Victim of Medical Malpractice

1. Read and Understand for Yourself
   Whenever you're given a new prescription or results of a medical test, read all you can about it, then ask whatever questions you have. Don't be embarrassed to ask questions. Be an advocate for yourself!

2. Get a Second Opinion about your Upcoming Procedure before it Occurs
   Before any non-emergency medical procedure, it is a good idea to get a second opinion. Getting a second opinion is not a matter of not trusting your doctor, it is a matter of being an educated patient.

3. Bring a Loved One or Friend
   When undergoing a serious medical procedure, bring a loved one or friend who can be your "eyes" and "ears" and help you think through important decisions. Having a "second pair of eyes and ears" may help keep you out of harm's way.

4. Get the Best Care Possible
   Perhaps the most effective way to avoid medical error is to avoid substandard physicians. The best way to prevent this is to research potential doctors before committing. If you ask the right questions and perform the right research, you will be well on your way to finding the right doctor and reducing your chances of being a victim of medical malpractice.

5. Contact Fodera & Long, P.C.
   If you believe that you or a loved one have been a victim of medical malpractice, contact the experienced lawyers at Fodera & Long, P.C. at 215-569-1212 or visit us online at www.foderalawfirm.com.

West Philly. Robbery charges against Liberian couple dropped

An immigrant couple's Kafkaesque nightmare ended Friday.

Judge Charles Hayden dismissed robbery charges against Vickson Korlewala, 57, and Lorpu Korlewala, 51, due to "lack of prosecution" at their preliminary hearing, after a prosecutor sought to appeal the judge's decision barring a witness rather than proceed.

"Be ready for the detectives to re-arrest," prosecutor Joseph McCool warned the Korlewalas as they left court.

Defense lawyers Kevin Mincey and Thomas Fitzpatrick called that a "threat."

"This is a common tactic prosecutors use to try and threaten lawyers and judges," Fitzpatrick said. "If you don't believe anything else, look at the pictures."

The D.A.'s office could re-file the criminal charges, Mincey said.

"All we can do is show up and be ready," he said.

The Korlewalas were arrested in April and spent two weeks in jail. They were charged with forcing an 80-year-old woman to withdraw $8,000 from her bank account. Lorpu's hair-braiding salon is located near where the victim was abducted.

Now, they're hoping to get back to normal life. Vickson is on the steering committee of SupportLiberia.org, and is focused on working to raise funds and supplies to fight the Ebola crisis.

"Our legal case ... has formed the basis of our coming together as well to fight Ebola," he said.

TICKET LINES: 'A THING OF THE PAST'

Why have you stopped using the new cars on two of Media-Elwyn lines' most used trains (9334 in the a.m. and 9365 in the p.m.)? We haven't had a new train for many, many months now.

NANCY SUTHERLAND

SEPTA's Regional Rail ridership is at an all-time high and continues to grow each year. Our staff routinely monitors ridership trends and make adjustments where possible to minimize overcrowded conditions with our available fleet. We agree that the two trains you refer to have very loyal patronage by our Media/Elwyn passengers. In fact, the reason we stopped utilizing the new rail cars on these trains was a direct result of complaints we received from the number of passengers that could not get a seat. The good news is that SEPTA is in the process of procuring new bi-level cars that will have a capacity of over 150 seats — most likely to be utilized on trains that have high ridership such as train 9334 and 9365. Since this procurement may take a couple years … we are also undergoing a retrofit of the lighting system to provide brighter, environmentally beneficial LED lights on the cars.

Quoted

"SEPTA is developing a mobile website that will work on all devices. Through this, passengers can load a pass or add funds to their smart card from anywhere, at any time."

Since SEPTA now has an app, has any thought been taken into making a application for customers to purchase their train tickets for the railroad?

SAMUEL BENNIE

SEPTA's new open-payment fare system will provide customers with fare purchasing options as convenient as mobile ticketing, if not more so. SEPTA is developing a mobile website that will work on all devices. Through this, passengers can load a pass or add funds to their smart card from anywhere, at any time. A mobile wallet on your NFC cell phone can also be loaded with transit funds and used in place of your smartcard. Regional Rail riders will still have the convenience of paying cash or tapping their contactless bank card for a Pay-Go transaction. Waiting in line to purchase tickets will be a thing of the past.

Black Israelites, Philly Jesus square off in LOVE Park

Center City. A notorious cult group that preaches hate was met with the words of Christ.

Two radically opposed forces met in Center City this weekend: Philly Jesus and the Black Israelites.

The Black Israelites came to a new location Saturday — LOVE Park — to preach their ideology through loudspeakers.

"I walked past them and they called me a white devil out of nowhere," said Philly Jesus, whose real name is Mike Grant, a Christian who pays tribute to his faith by dressing as Jesus and speaking to passersby about God.

"I'm next to the 'LOVE,' sign, where it's multicultural. I accept everyone for who they are, just like Jesus would, and they're out there preaching hate. It shows the contrast between the evil and the good," Philly Jesus observed.

Philly Jesus confronts the Black Israelites Saturday, as they criticize an image of Christ. / COURTESY OF PHILLY JESUS

Quoted

"Very calmly, in between the pauses on the microphone, I would say, 'Yo, I love you.'"

Philly Jesus

While Philly Jesus first stayed away, he said that he saw teenagers start trying to shout down the Black Israelites and decided to intervene.

"I went to say, just hold up your peace sign. Don't waste your energy and your voice by shouting at them, because it's just like talking to a wall," he said. "I stood there for a couple hours, just holding the peace sign up. If anybody came up screaming, I just went, 'Shhh.'"

The Black Israelites read from the Bible, but Philly Jesus disputed their interpretation.

"It's not about skin color. It says in the Bible, Galatians 3:28: 'There is neither Jew nor Gentile, neither slave nor free, nor is there male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus.'"

Philly Jesus said he will organize a response if the Black Israelites return.

Who are they?

The Black Israelites are members of the Israelite School of Universal Practical Knowledge, based in Upper Darby.

- They wear black robes and Stars of David, and are known for their racist, misogynistic and hateful speeches directed at everyone not part of their cult, usually at top volume in front of The Shops at Liberty Place.
- The Shops sued to have them removed but lost on First Amendment grounds. They have installed bike racks where the Black Israelites usually preach, and also hired a DJ to bump pop music over their speeches.

Ban-Ki Moon, DiCaprio march in world climate demonstration

New York. The march was packed with celebrities and dignitaries who want change.

STING TOOK PART IN THE MARCH. / GETTY IMAGES

Several A-list celebrities and world dignitaries were among the hundreds of thousands who marched through Manhattan and in cities around the world Sunday demanding government action on climate change in what organizers called the largest climate demonstration ever.

Demonstrators, including homeowners flooded by Hurricane Sandy, political leaders and indigenous people fighting oil companies in Latin America, chanted, sang and danced in an appeal to global leaders to act on climate change.

Singer Sting, actor Leonardo DiCaprio and Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders carried signs along the route.

"It's a campaign to solve complacency against climate change," Sting said in an interview. "We are making a statement that is anything but complacent."

The event comes ahead of a United Nations summit this week on climate change and coincided with more than 2,600 events planned in 150 countries.

Also among the march participants was U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, who will host more than 120 heads of state and government at what he called a "political action forum" on climate change. It will be the largest gathering of heads of state focusing on climate issues, and will set a framework for talks in Lima in December and Paris next year, when leaders will attempt to hammer out a pact on cutting emissions blamed for global warming. Organizers said the march drew more than 310,000 people to New York this weekend.

Summit at the UN

The United Nations Climate Summit starts on Tuesday.

- All member states will attend the summit, with the idea of working toward an agreement to limit the rise in global temperature.
- Opening speakers include U.N. Secretary General Ban Ki-Moon, Mayor Bill de Blasio, former Vice President Al Gore and actor Leonardo DiCaprio.
- The daylong event includes talks on "action areas" that include agriculture, cities, energy, financing, forests, pollutants, resilience and transportation.

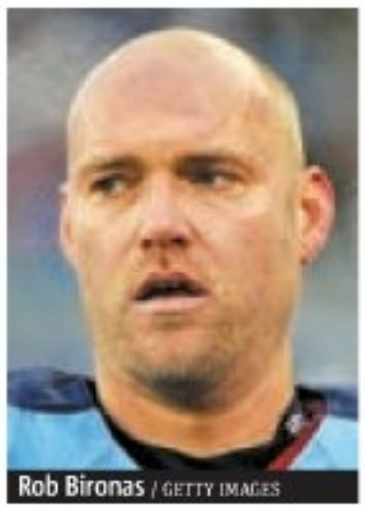
Former pro kicker dies in car wreck

NFL. In 2007, Bironas set an NFL record by kicking eight field goals in a game against the Houston Texans.



Rob Bironas / GETTY IMAGES

Former Tennessee Titans kicker Rob Bironas died late Saturday in a single-vehicle car crash in Nashville, police said on Sunday.

Bironas, 36, lost control of the SUV he was driving at a high rate of speed around a curve in the road, the Metropolitan Nashville Police Department said in a statement. The vehicle veered off the right side of the road, struck a line of trees and stopped upside down in a large culvert, police said.

Bironas was taken by ambulance to Vanderbilt University Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead, police said.

The accident happened just after 11 p.m. and less than a mile from Bironas' home, where police believe he was headed. No evidence of drugs or alcohol was found, police said.

Bironas played nine years for the Titans in the National Football League before he was released early this year. Bironas converted 85.7 percent of his field goal attempts in his career.

In June, Bironas married Rachel Bradshaw, the daughter of former Steelers Hall of Fame quarterback Terry Bradshaw, according to NFL.com.

"We are deeply saddened to hear the tragic news from last night about Rob Bironas," the Titans said in a statement. REUTERS

Quoted

"Rob made a significant impact as a player in his nine years with the team and more importantly touched many lives in the Nashville community off the field."

US says other nations are willing to launch air strikes in Syria

The United States says other countries are willing to launch air strikes in Syria against Islamic State militants and its U.N. ambassador predicted on Sunday: "We will not do the air strikes alone."

Washington is trying to build an international military, political and financial coalition to defeat the radical Sunni Muslim group that has seized swaths of Iraq and Syria and proclaimed a caliphate in the heart of the Middle East.

U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Samantha Power was asked on CBS' "Face the Nation" if the United States had any indication other countries were willing to launch air strikes in Syria.

"We do," Power said. "But we're going to leave it to other nations to announce for themselves what their specific commitments to the coalition are going to be."

Litigation. Families of German MH17 crash victims to sue Ukraine

A temporary memorial sits outside of the embassy of the Netherlands in Berlin, Germany. / GETTY IMAGES

Survivors of German victims of Malaysian Airlines flight MH17 downed over Ukraine plan to sue the country and its president for manslaughter by negligence in 298 cases, the lawyer representing them said on Sunday.

Professor of aviation law Elmar Giemulla, who is representing three families of German victims, said that under international law Ukraine should have closed its air space if it could not guarantee the safety of flights.

"Each state is responsible for the security of its air space," Giemulla said in a statement emailed to Reuters. "If it is not able to do so temporarily, it must close its air space. As that did not happen, Ukraine is liable for the damage."

Four Germans died in the crash of MH17.

Bild am Sonntag, a Sunday mass newspaper, quoted Giemulla as saying that by not closing its airspace, Ukraine had accepted that the lives of hundreds of innocent people would be "annihilated" and this was a violation of human rights.

Giemulla planned to hand his case to the European Court of Human Rights in about two weeks, accusing Ukraine and its President Petro Poroshenko of manslaughter by negligence in 298 cases. REUTERS

Kentucky firefighter dies after ice bucket challenge accident

A Kentucky firefighter who was severely injured a month ago while helping college students take part in an ALS fundraiser died on Saturday from his injuries, authorities said.

Captain Tony Grider, 41, of Campbellsville, was hurt along with three other firefighters when an aerial ladder got too close to a power line as their department doused a university band with water.

Kyle Smith, the chief of Campbellsville Fire and Rescue, said Grider died at noon at University of Louisville hospital.

Grider and his three colleagues were injured on Aug. 21 when they were attempting to help students at Campbellsville University participate in the ice bucket challenge to raise funds to fight amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease. REUTERS

Pope, on trip to mainly Muslim Albania, condemns ISIS

Pope Francis, in his strongest criticism of Islamist militants to date, said on Sunday no religious group which used violence and oppression could claim to be "the armor of God."

Francis made his comments during a one-day visit to Albania, an impoverished Balkan country hailed by the pontiff as a model of inter-faith harmony because of good relations between its majority Muslim community and its Christian denominations.

"Let no one consider themselves the 'armor of God' while planning and carrying out acts of violence and oppression," he said in the presidential palace in Tirana, responding to an address by Albanian President Bujar Nishani, who is Muslim. REUTERS

"May no one use religion as a pretext for actions against human dignity, and against the fundamental rights of every man and woman, above all to the right to life and the right of everyone to religious freedom."

SEPTEMBER SAFETY TIPS:

The back-to-school season is a time that can be stressful for both parents and students. Aside from the obvious, back to school comes with new traffic patterns and added hazards to the roadways. Here are some tips to remember:

- Exercise extra caution as sun glare can be a factor during these times
- Come to a complete stop at a safe distance from a bus when the red lights are flashing and the stop sign arm is extended - this indicates the bus is stopped and children are getting off the bus
- Never pass a stopped school bus - it is illegal in all 50 states

How do you spell homophobia in Russian? t.A.T.u.

I know we've all been waiting for the girls from t.A.T.u., the faux-lesbian one-hit wonder Russian duo, to chime in on the subject of homosexuality considering the increasingly hostile environment toward gays and lesbians in Russia.

Well, I've got some bad news. Singer Julia Volkova would not be too thrilled if she ended up with a gay son. "Yes, I would condemn him, because I believe that a real man must be a real man," she said during an appearance on a Ukrainian talk show.

"God created man for procreation, it is the nature. … I won't accept a gay son."

But don't worry, guys. Some of her best friends are gay and she's totally down with them, so long as they're not related to her. "I'm not against gays, I just want my son to be a real man, not a f–," Volkova adds. "I have many gay friends. I believe that being gay is all still better than murderers, thieves or drug addicts."

Oddly enough, she didn't say how she'd feel about having a daughter who pretended to be a lesbian to boost album sales.

Remember when these two were pretending to be this close?

New nudes leak, and Clay Aiken is on the scene!

A new batch of nude selfies supposedly belonging to celebrities like Kim Kardashian, Vanessa Hudgens, Lake Bell and Avril Lavigne hit the Web over the weekend, flooding Twitter and Reddit. It's unclear whether this new batch of pics, coming three weeks after the massive iCloud hacking celebrity photo leak, are authentic, and reps for the victims have no comment. But you know who does have a comment? Clay Aiken! Because obviously everyone was waiting for him to chime in on the subject. "Anybody who takes inappropriate pictures of themselves deserves exactly what they get," Aiken tells the Washington Post. "Of course whoever [stole and released the photos] should be hogtied. And it's unfortunate that we don't have Internet security right now or the laws in place to protect people from pirating that stuff." Maybe Aiken, who is running for a congressional seat in North Carolina, can make that part of his platform: admonishing people for their personal choices and trying to stop "pirating and stuff." Has a nice ring to it.

Aiken is on the campaign trail, just not for the rights of celebrity privacy. /GETTY IMAGES

How to get away with mischaracterizing Shondra Rhimes

Shonda Rhimes read Alessandra Stanley's New York Times piece about her being "an angry black woman" and "a romance writer" in relation to the new show "How to Get Away with Murder," and Rhimes is, well … angry. "Wait. I'm 'angry' AND a ROMANCE WRITER?!!" Rhimes posted to Twitter. "I'm going to need to put down the Internet and go dance this one out. Because ish is getting real." She also helpfully pointed out a glaring error in Stanley's story: Rhimes isn't actually the creator of "How to Get Away with Murder," Pete Nowalk is. He's white and male, but possibly still angry.

‘Gotham’ revisited

BEN MCKENZIE
GETTY IMAGES

Superheroes. Ben McKenzie says his new version of the Batman story will show Gotham on its way to needing Batman to save it.

“Gotham” premieres tonight at 8 on Fox. / JESSICA MIGLIO/FOX

“Gotham” isn’t your average superhero origin story. In fact, the iconic Batman-in-the-making storyline isn’t even the central focus of this gritty new drama based in the DC Universe. Though the murder of Bruce Wayne’s parents and its aftermath is addressed in the pilot, the rise of the Caped Crusader during Gotham City’s fall isn’t told from his point of view — it’s seen through the eyes of future Police Commissioner James Gordon.

“Jim is the central focus because he is the moral center, he’s the man trying to push back the ocean [of corruption],” says Ben McKenzie, who plays Gordon in the Fox series. “Gotham”’s Gordon is a rookie detective who quickly makes enemies due to his unwavering commitment to law and order. “Everyone else is drawn in opposition to him on purpose,” McKenzie explains. “He will have his victories and defeats as he rises up in the police department, and yet at the same time fails in his ultimate quest to clean up the city. ‘Cause if he succeeded in that, then there’d be no need for Batman.”

When young Bruce needs a role model, it’s Gordon’s sense of duty that inspires him. But Gordon’s assessment of right and wrong also affects more villainous Gotham residents. Those battles end up making Gordon unwittingly complicit in the fall of the city from the get-go. “He does his best, but he loses the war,” says McKenzie.

Rewrites

A new spin on the Batman myth

Though it takes a new spin on DC lore, McKenzie doesn’t view the story of “Gotham” as bastardizing the 75-year history of Batman mythology. “If you read enough of the source material, there’s an awful lot of things that don’t quite add up if you tried to create a singular narrative out of it,” he points out. Of course, McKenzie’s fended off this kind of criticism before: He voiced Bruce Wayne in 2011’s animated adaptation of “Batman: Year One.”

Spader after dark

In honor of tonight's second season premiere of "The Blacklist," where James Spader plays good guy/bad guy Raymond "Red" Reddington, it's a good time to look back at Spader's storied history of playing not-so-nice guys. While the '80s saw him showcase his evil yuppie side, he graduated to intense, morally ambiguous guys in the '90s. But his next role might have him on his worst behavior yet.

MATT PRIGGE AND LISA WEIDENFELD

1 'Pretty in Pink'

1986
The first step in Spader's path to pop culture villainy was playing the snobby Steff in "Pretty in Pink." While "The Blacklist"'s Red engages in global espionage, Steff partakes of a more mundane form of bad guy tactics: He's a jerk to Molly Ringwald's Andie because she comes from a poor family, and he tries to discourage rich kid Blane from dating her.

2 'Less Than Zero'

After "Pretty in Pink," there was no going back to good. When the first of the Brett Easton Ellis movies — about Los Angeles' young, pretty and sometimes drugged-out — needed a scary dealer, they turned to Spader, who slicked back his hair to terrorize his former "Tuff Turf" co-star, Robert Downey Jr.

3 'Wolf'

By 1994, Spader was freely wobbling back and forth between good and evil. He was firmly on the latter side in Mike Nichols' polished werewolf movie, where he's the guy who makes the mistake of sleeping with Jack Nicholson's wife — right before Nicholson turns lycanthrope. Spader even gets his shoes micturated (look it up, then say "ew") upon by Jack.

"The Blacklist" returns tonight at 10 on NBC. / WILL HART, NBC

'2 Days in the Valley'

1996

The immediate post-"Pulp Fiction" era was a nasty one, with weak imitations flooding the market. One of those was this Altman-esque ensemble piece, which counted among its many characters Spader's bespectacled, psychopathic, Charlize Theron-humping hit man.

'The Office'

2011-2012

So maybe Robert California wasn't quite as bad as some of Spader's other nefarious roles, but he wasn't exactly a good guy, was he? "The Office"'s second boss seemed to thrive on keeping all of his employees slightly off-balance with his intense but unreadable management technique, and we all know there's nothing worse than a bad boss.

'The Avengers: Age of Ultron'

In perhaps his strongest run of villainy yet, Spader will be voicing Ultron, the villain in the upcoming "Avengers" sequel. Sure, some of those other guys wreaked havoc in their high schools, or across the country, but Ultron? That guy's working some interstellar wickedness.

"Sleepy Hollow" returns tonight at 9 on Fox. / BROWNIE HARRIS, FOX

Apocalypse now

Battles. War, in the form of a Horseman of the Apocalypse, has arrived on "Sleepy Hollow," and it's up to Ichabod Crane and Abbie Mills to stop it.

The end of the first season of "Sleepy Hollow" was the best kind of finale, leaving viewers wondering, "How are they going to get out of that mess?" Especially when the mess deals with a Revolutionary War hero who is trying to prevent the end of the world in the modern day. We asked lead Tom Mison what to expect in Season 2.

Hopefully everyone gets out of those dire straits pretty quickly, because they've got an apocalypse to prevent.
That's the big question: Not only how do people get out, but if they get out of those situations. And then once we are out, how does it affect the relationships? And that's something that resonates throughout the rest of the season.

How is the relationship between Ichabod, his partner-in-crime Abbie and his wife, Katrina, affected?
What do you do with relationships when the apocalypse is coming? Tricky. And it's a bit of a mood-killer. [Laughs] There are new relationships; there are new interests. There's someone who has his eye on Abbie. There's of course still Katrina, and how do you reach her when she's with the Horseman of Death?

Do people outside the gang realize a war is being waged?
Well, how do you tell people the apocalypse is coming and not get locked up? [Laughs] That's another dilemma — we have to be a secretive army.

Bonus question

After reading the script for the Season 1 finale, did you have the same "holy crap" reaction that fans did watching it?
Yeah. I had a conversation with Alex Kurtzman, one of the executive producers, who told me [co-star] John Noble was the Horseman of War. I had no idea. I knew when John joined us that he was going to be revealed to be my son; I didn't know that he would be a bad son, so that was a huge surprise.

JAMES MCAVOY HAS FUN WALLOWING IN 'FILTH'

'Filth'

Netflix Instant

You've seen "Filth" before. It's one of those bad cop movies — like "Bad Lieutenant," or "Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call - New Orleans" — offering up the chance to hang with a sociopathic deviant who wields too much power. And yet, the deviant in "Filth" — a Scottish detective named Bruce Robertson — is played by little, usually nice James McAvoy. And yes, it does make a difference. One can never get too worried about the guy whose big break was as the helpful faun in "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe," even when he's propositioning sex from a 16-year-old, dosing himself into a psychedelic stupor or relentlessly messing with a connected but shy friend (Eddie Marsan), just because he can.

The tone helps, too. This isn't a grimy, deep soak into depravity, as you would expect from an adaptation of an Irvine Welsh slog. (Even "Trainspotting" gets ugly.) It's almost not even a dark comedy; it's a comedy about dark things. McAvoy and director Jon S. Baird are having the time of their lives, diving into horrific deeds with big grins across their faces, depicting their repulsive antihero as a kid in a candy store. Good times like this can't last, not even here: Right on cue, the third act reveals a skeleton in Robertson's closet intended to dial up some unearned pathos. But at least the star and director keep that deranged smile right up to the final moment.

NARCISSISM: WHEN VANITY TURNS UGLY

I have a friend who constantly talks about herself and rarely asks any questions about my life. She is forever preening, obsessed with her body, brags about her sexual or professional conquests and posts seductive selfies on social media. Is it self-confidence or narcissism?

Narcissists can feel like models on a runway all the time. That can leave friends feeling more like their audience than peers. / GETTY IMAGES

Reportedly, narcissists have more sex, are nightmares to divorce and feed on self-promotional platforms like Facebook and Instagram.

Yet some of the very same traits commonly associated with narcissism would appear to characterize a fair-sized swath of the general population, especially in big cities where such attributes are encouraged and commonly associated with success.

How, then, does one distinguish a tiresomely self-centered person from a pathological narcissist?

Motivation. People fitting either description might aspire to maintain a goal weight and dress fashionably, but a truly confident person will be driven by self-care and personal expression, whereas a true narcissist will aspire to win other people's love and admiration as a means to manipulate.

Empathy. While some argue that narcissism exists along a continuum, with milder sufferers able to feel genuine compassion, those at the more extreme end don't value others' emotions and experiences. When challenged, they often respond with denial and rage, and they can be vindictive.

That brings me to your question. Whether your friend is a diagnosed narcissist or not doesn't matter — you're her friend, not her therapist. Try sharing your feelings while expressing your desire that she inquire about your life, or you will presume she doesn't care. Narcissist or not, a "friend" who doesn't take an interest in your well-being is not a true friend, and she's not worth keeping around.

You're so vain

Word origins

The word "narcissist" comes from the story of an exceptionally vain Greek demigod named Narcissus who died because he couldn't tear himself away from his own reflection.

A DAFFODIL'S BOTANICAL NAME IS NARCISSUS. / THINKFOTO.DK

Are you a narcissist?

Candidates for Narcissistic Personality Disorder must meet at least five of the following criteria:

- display an exaggerated sense of self importance or grandiosity
- harbor fantasies of unlimited success, power, brilliance or beauty
- express excessive concern about their status and sense of specialness
- require constant admiration
- possess a sense of entitlement
- lack empathy and aspire to be envied (while secretly envying others)
- had parents who didn't properly acknowledge, accept or praise their thoughts, feelings and talents (so narcissists never develop an accurate picture of themselves and remain emotionally stunted)

Taking breaks actually helps the brain retain information. / COLOURBOX

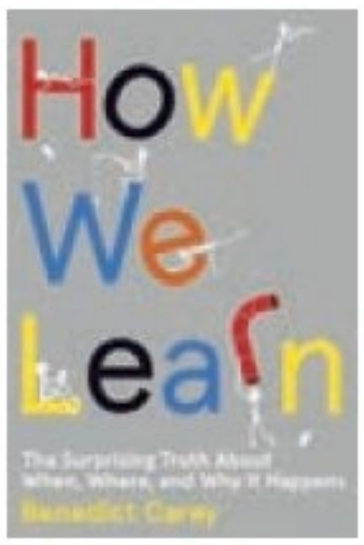
Cramming doesn't work, but this does

Study guide. With a little planning, your academic performance can change dramatically.

Picture this: It's midterm week, and college students everywhere are trying to frantically memorize all of the math formulas, political theories and historical facts that they possibly can. Needless to say, most won't be successful.

"Cramming is like stuffing a cheap suitcase," says Benedict Carey, the author of the new book "How We Learn: The Surprising Truth About When, Where, and Why It Happens." "It stays in for a while and then it falls out." While cramming does work in the short-term, most students forget most of the material within days.

Author Benedict Carey
SOO-JEONG KANG



We asked Carey for his advice on how to study more effectively.

Break things up

Let's say you have three hours to study for a test. Carey suggests breaking up the material into three distinct parts. "It's called spacing," Carey explains. Studying for an hour and then taking a 15-minute break helps you retain information.

Reject routines

It's a myth that students should study at the same time and place every day. "Vary the music, the sights and the sounds around you," urges Carey. Taking your textbooks to a cafe to study can help you remember the material better. "All of those things enrich that memory," says Carey.

Quiz yourself

Instead of solely devoting your study time to memorizing the material, Carey says students should also make it a point to test themselves. "Let's say you are studying a language," says Carey. "If I give you 10 words, it's much better to test yourself than to study them again and again."

LAKSHMI GANDHI
@LakshmiGandhi
lakshmi.gandhi@metro.us

Rest up

Remember to sleep

Most students probably suspect that all-nighters are unhealthy. Carey has the science to prove it. "Sleep is a kind of learning, too," he says. If you feel like you absolutely need an extra few hours to review before your test, Carey says it's better to wake up earlier and study rather than staying up well into the night.

Staying in school. PBS gets set to host American Graduate Day 2014

Each year, a reported 1.3 million high school students drop out of school — a number so high that many experts say addressing it is one of the biggest problems facing American education today.

"There isn't one reason students drop out," says Wes Moore, an author and Army veteran. "There's a collection of reasons — kids just don't feel engaged, and a lot of times there is a family situation."

On Saturday, Moore will host American Graduate Day 2014, an all-day broadcast that will air on PBS stations across the country. Throughout the day, the broadcast will highlight educational success stories and feature guest appearances from celebrities including Tony Bennett, Ingrid Michaelson, "Sesame Street"'s Elmo and Allison Williams.

We talked to Moore about what communities can do to help at-risk students.

Moore stresses the importance of good mentors and role models. / JOSEPH SINNOTT, WNET

Solutions

Support former students

Many dropouts struggle with unemployment. Moore suggests investing in work-training programs geared toward dropouts and creating relationships with colleges that could enroll these students.

Be a good mentor

"We have a lot of kids who don't have families or support systems," says Moore. Mentoring programs and strong relationships with teachers can be crucial to keeping students on track to graduate. "Even if it's not your blood family, they can turn into your family," says Moore.

End 'dropout factories'

Researchers define so-called "dropout factories" as high schools where students have as much of a chance of dropping out as they do of graduating, says Moore. "We have to be able to raise expectations," says Moore. "We have these low expectations of what these students are capable of."

Zosia Mamet doesn't 'lean in'

THERE ARE MANY WAYS TO DEFINE SUCCESS, SAYS MAMET. /GETTY IMAGES

Career path. The "Girls" star says all women can find a way to make their mark.

Zosia Mamet is living proof that even if you don't think you can get a job you're going for, you should still try.

Mamet burst onto the scene two years ago with the premiere of the hit HBO show "Girls." But after auditioning Mamet was convinced that she would never get her role.

"I was very ill. I had pneumonia," Mamet recalls of the tape she sent in. "I did one take because I was so sick, so I thought my chances were slim."

Mamet and Glamour magazine are teaming up with Bayer HealthCare to launch the Skyla Make Your Mark contest, which aims to find young women who are making an impact. We caught up with Mamet to get her definition of success.

Mamet is also a writer. / BRAVO

What does it mean to make your mark?
I think it's anybody who is contributing in a strong way to the world. There are many, many vast ways to make your mark.

You've said the "lean in" movement is not for you.
Often women are knocked for making choices that make them happier because they are not necessarily grand choices. I feel that you are making your mark no matter what you do — whether you are a CEO or a mother.

Bonus question

You used to get sad as a kid when people talked about work.
I used to sneak into my parents' dinner parties and people would start bitching near the end of the dinner party because they had to go home because they had to get up for work. I didn't understand as a kid. You're given this blank slate, why would you do something that makes you unhappy?

HERE'S HOW TO MAKE THE MOST OF A JOB FAIR

Inside HR

VICKI SALEMI

Vicki Salemi is a career and human resources expert and consultant with 16-plus years of hands-on management experience. She's a public speaker, coach, the author of "Big Career in the Big City" and the on-air host of "Score That Job."

Job fair hunters, unite! There are a few things to keep in mind to make the most out of the intense meet-and-greet.

Dress to impress

Among a sea of navy and black suits, strive to stand out. Look impeccable, and add a splash of color to sparkle.

Do your homework

Consider the job fair a mini-interview, since you'll score limited face time at employer booths.

Have a plan

Decide upon your Top 3 potential employers and approach them first. Be specific and strategic with your conversation — if there's an available opportunity online, mention it.

Condense your elevator pitch

Make your introduction as flawless and as succinct as possible. Time is of the essence, but how you express yourself is equally important. Look the recruiter in the eye and be enthusiastic!

NEW DIABETES STUDY SHOWS:
*Insulin Shots More Than Double the Risk of DEATH in Type II Diabetics

A new clinical study has shown that the disease of TYPE II DIABETES CAN BEGIN TO BE REVERSED in as little as 1 WEEK!

A free guide has just been made available to Type II Diabetics detailing an approach that appears to be more powerful than any drug known to modern science. The free diabetic guide explains in plain English how many diabetics have been able to reduce and eliminate their drugs and insulin injections, lose weight without exercise, reduce and eliminate the risk for diabetic complications, restore pancreatic function, and even become non-diabetic.

The free guide also reveals rarely used diagnostic testing that is helping doctors understand potential causes of diabetes beyond weight gain, genetics and lack of exercise.

Letters

Stop all violence

Actions like those of Ray Rice happen, in large part, because the culture tolerates and glorifies violence. People who commit these crimes are seldom held responsible, especially if they are stars. If those who abuse knew that they would be held responsible, we would see a great reduction in such crimes. While treatment is part of the solution, as long as perpetrators get away with violence, it will continue. It will take a concerted effort to stop violence. There is way too much violence in the media, much of it sexual, that must be eliminated. A renewed women's movement, sexual abuse survivors movement and people of color movement is needed. SHIFRA FREEWOMAN, VIA EMAIL

Stop hating cyclists

There's a very easy test to prove it is pedestrians who are the No. 1 criminal in the city, and not cyclists: Stand and watch how many pedestrians break the law and wander into the bike lane (lots) versus how many cyclists break the law and wander into the pedestrian lane (almost zero, unless their bike lane has pedestrians in it). Film it, too. Then tell us what you saw. Facts matter. Cyclists can't get away with not paying attention because we get badly hurt in any crash. JANICE AMATO, VIA EMAIL

Eagles comeback in third straight game

NFL. Nick Foles and the Birds offense mount yet another double-digit comeback against Washington.

Jordan Matthews became the fourth Eagles rookie in history to catch two touchdowns. /GETTY IMAGES

In Week 3 of this young NFL season, Eagles fans were treated with one of the most memorable regular season contests in recent history, as the Birds fought back against the Redskins, the officials and a bevy of injuries to ruin the return of DeSean Jackson at Lincoln Financial Field on Sunday.

Once again trailing by double-digits in the first half, the Eagles offense was dynamic and the defense held on just enough in a 37-34 win against Washington, moving them to 3-0.

"It was a fight," quarterback Nick Foles said, "literally there were fights during the game. It was a hard fought game and I am glad we ended up on top."

In an exceptionally raw game emotionally on both sides — one that saw Jason Peters and Chris Baker kicked out of the game — Nick Foles threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to Jeremy Maclin midway through the fourth quarter to break a 27-27 deadlock.

"I think Nick just stood in there today," Kelly said. "He is a tough sucker, he got hit a lot today. It's a victory, it's a division victory, we'll take it."

Not long after the go-ahead touchdown, Malcom Jenkins pulled in an interception that gave the Eagles the opportunity to make it a two-possession game on a 51-yard Cody Parkey field goal.

It would be a meaningful three points, as the Redskins marched down the field minutes later to cut the lead to just three points. The Eagles went 3-and-out with the ball but the defense stood tall on fourth down to clinch the "W."

"Its' the way we train," Jeknins said of the defense's late heroics. "What we are built for it's the second half, guys are cool-headed, calm, we talk about stuff on the sideline, it's a good quality to have."

Former Eagles pro bowler Jackson made his presence felt with a game-tying 81-yard touchdown catch late in the third quarter. But his "replacement," second-round pick Jordan Matthews, led a wide receiving corps that made Nick Foles (28-42, 325 yards, 3 TD) look pretty good.

Matthews had his first two NFL touchdown catches making him the fourth Birds rookie to catch two in a game and first since Jeremy Maclin in 2009.

The Eagles picked up just 54 yards on the ground, but certainly made up for it in the air.

"They took away the run game so we had to make them pay for the error, and we did," Kelly said.

Quoted

"It comes down to the mentality of our team. We train to finish, we train at a fast pace so at the end of practice we are just as fast as we are at the beginning." Malcom Jenkins

Peterson 'in denial'

Adrian Peterson remains optimistic that he will play again in 2014, but even if he reaches a plea deal with Texas prosecutors, it is likely that the NFL will eventually suspend the running back indefinitely, according to ESPN. In the ESPN report, it is said that Peterson is "in denial" about his future in football, with sources saying that Peterson "really doesn't get it."

Foles stands tough after 'cheap shot,' inspires Birds' offense

NFL. The Eagles quarterback told his huddle "now lets make them pay for it," after unsportsmanlike hit.

Nick Foles bounced back from a defenseless hit to the ribs. / GETTY IMAGES

Chip Kelly was talking to his fellow coaches on whether or not to challenge an apparent interception in the fourth quarter of Sunday's win over the Redskins. The game was tied, and it looked as if the ball hit the ground and was an incomplete pass.

Then he looked across the field and saw a "melee" near the far sideline.

"The next thing I knew, a hockey game broke out," Kelly said.

The interception would eventually be overturned, but on the ensuing nullified return, Redskins nose tackle Chris Baker hit Nick Foles from behind, giving Eagles fans a scare. Seconds later, the Birds' left tackle Jason Peters started attacking Baker as retribution, and both benches cleared.

"I thought the guy was down," Foles said. "That's why I wasn't looking for anyone, and next thing I knew I was obliterated."

After a few minutes' worth of chaos and scuffles, both Baker and Peters were booted from the game.

"I love those guys," Foles said of the teammates who stood up for him. "They have my back, in that situation, when a guy does a dirty play — all of those guys just keep fighting."

A few plays later, Foles found Jeremy Maclin to put the Eagles ahead for good.

"You want to take stuff like that and use it to your advantage," Maclin said. "You see your quarterback get up from that, it gives you that extra excitement you need as well. A credit to Nick. He's a fighter."

NFL. Eagles continue to make team, NFL history, week by week

Before Sunday, no NFL team in the history of football had ever come back from double-digits behind and won three times in a row to start a season.

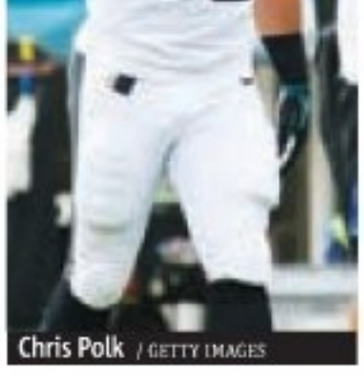
The 3-0 Eagles are used to making history now, after historic comebacks against the Jaguars, Colts and Redskins. And there are still 13 games left.

"It's definitely going to be competitive," Eagles receiver Jordan Matthews said looking forward. "It was definitely a fight [today], to be literal. I just know it's going to be like that. The teams that are going to win are the ones that stay even-keeled throughout the game."

Matthews made history as well, becoming the eighth rookie in Eagles history to catch two touchdown passes, and his eight receptions are the most for a rookie since 1988.

Jeremy Maclin led the Birds with 154 receiving yards, his 11th 100-yard game and the third-highest output of his career.

He and Nick Foles have now connected for 775 yards and six touchdowns on 53 receptions in their last 10 games, games that the Eagles are 9-1 in.



Chris Polk / GETTY IMAGES

Foles became the third quarterback in NFL history to eclipse 300-yards in three straight games Sunday, while Chris Polk's first quarter, 102-yard kickoff return for a touchdown was the first such score since Quenton Demps did it for the Birds in 2008, and was the first ever for the Eagles at Lincoln Financial Field. The Eagles have had to come from behind three times and still haven't played a complete 60 minutes at their best.

"We have a long way to go with this football team," Jeremy Maclin said, "but just imagine how good we will be once we get [some] things fixed."

Seahawks win Super Bowl rematch in overtime

NFL. Seattle earns dramatic win at home in battle between reigning NFC, AFC champs.

Seattle used a methodical drive in overtime to down the Broncos, 26-20, Sunday, as Marshawn Lynch plunged into the end zone from six yards out to end Denver's hopes for a thrilling comeback win. Peyton Manning and Denver scored 17 fourth quarter points to force the overtime. Lynch ran for 88 yards on 26 carries. Manning was intercepted once, but threw for 303 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

Cardinals 23, 49ers 14
Arizona moved to 3-0 on the season behind backup quarterback Drew Stanton, who completed 18-of-33 passes for 244 yards and a pair of touchdowns. Rookie receiver John Brown caught both of Stanton's touchdown passes.

Chiefs 34, Dolphins 15
Knile Davis ran wild on Miami's defense, gaining 132 yards on the ground. Kansas City outscored the Dolphins 20-12 in the second half, with Joe McKnight and Cyrus Gray each finding the end zone.

Chargers 22, Bills 10
Philip Rivers is an early NFL MVP candidate and the Chargers certainly look to be real this season. San Diego stomped out the feel-good story of 2014 so far Sunday, handing the Bills (2-1) their first loss of the year.

Saints 20, Vikings 9
The Saints jumped out to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter as Pierre Thomas fell into the end zone from a yard out and Josh Hill hauled in a 34-yard touchdown pass from Drew Brees.

Bengals 33, Titans 7
The Bengals made another solid case Sunday that they're the best team in the league as they dominated Tennessee. AJ Green caught six balls for 102 yards and quarterback Andy Dalton actually caught an 18-yard touchdown pass from Mohamed Sanu on a first quarter trick play.

NFC East roundup

Cowboys rally from huge deficit, Giants also prevail

Dallas fell behind by 21 points early but rallied to match its biggest comeback in franchise history Sunday in St. Louis in a 34-31 win.

Terrance Williams' 12-yard touchdown grab with 6:13 remaining put the Cowboys in front and Bruce Carter's 25-yard interception return for a touchdown ultimately gave Dallas the win.

Bruce Carter / GETTY IMAGES

Tony Romo was efficient, hitting on 18-of-23 passes for two touchdowns.

Giants 30, Texans 17
Don't count out the Giants and Eli Manning just yet. Manning finally looked comfortable running New York's new offense as he hit on 21-of-28 passes for 234 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

He did not throw an interception. Rashad Jennings helped matters greatly for Big Blue with 176 yards of rushing on 34 carries.

Phillies leave many

MLB. As this disappointing season winds to a close, we're left asking questions about the Phillies.

There hasn't been much to cheer about with A.J. Burnett this season, but the veteran pitcher will likely avoid losing 20 games at least. / GETTY IMAGES

The Phillies are akin to a soap opera. There are more questions than answers, especially as this forgettable season winds to a close.

Metro breaks down a handful of questions you'll be asking yourself over the final weeks.

Is Jerome Williams for real?

After bombing out with the pitching-starved Rangers and Astros, Williams, who is 4-2 with a 2.45 ERA after shutting out the A's Saturday, has been very good during his run in red pinstripes.

But the sample set may be too small for the Phillies to get an accurate picture of the pitcher. Is Williams having a solid run since he has primarily faced teams that have never see him?

"I'm just trying to be positive," Williams said. "My approach is different since I've come to the Phillies and I really like being here. Who knows what will happen to me next year? Maybe I'll have an opportunity to be back here next season. We'll see."

Know your role

Is Freddy Galvis legitimately good?

FREDDY GALVIS
GETTY IMAGES

During the first half of the season, Galvis wasn't hitting a supermodel's weight. However, he's hit .289 over the last dozen games since he has filled in for Jimmy Rollins.

"Galvis has a great glove but I don't believe in his bat," a NL scout said.

"He's ... young but I don't know if he'll develop an offensive game. ... I question whether he'll ever be more than a role player."

Will A.J. Burnett lose 20 games?

No, the tattooed hurler, who helped the Yankees beat the Phillies in the 2009 World Series, won't have enough starts to reach that tragic number, but it's a reminder of how bad this season has been.

questions

Will a Phillies starter win double-digit games?

Yes. Cole Hamels — run support willing — should win one of his last two starts to at least finish with 10 wins.

How crazy is it that Hamels is having arguably his finest career season and he is struggling to win 10?

Will the Phillies win more than 73 games?

The Phillies should be able to best 2013's 73-game win total, but it doesn't mean the team has improved over last year's model.

The remainder of the season is hardly compelling but the questions will be much more interesting after Ryne Sandberg's team plays its final game of the 2014 season Sunday.

MLB. A's close out series with high-scoring win over Phillies

The Phillies opened Sunday's series finale by grabbing a run right off the bat in the top of the first inning. But it was the two runs in the final frame which sent them to an 8-6 loss.

Josh Donaldson hit his 28th home run of the season off Miguel Alfredo Gonzalez in the bottom of the 10th inning to walk off with a win for the slumping Athletics. Oakland remains atop the AL wild-card standings despite being just 4-6 over their last 10 games.

A.J. Burnett avoided the ignominy of his 18th loss on the season, though not because he pitched well. He allowed three runs in the bottom of the first inning and struggled with command over just 4 1/3 innings. He finished with six walks and scattered six hits. He also hit Jed Lowrie and Adam Dunn with pitches.

By the numbers

A.J. Burnett's rough outing on Sunday raised his season-long ERA to 4.57. That's his highest-qualifying ERA as a NL pitcher since his second season in 2000 (4.79).

The bullpen picked the Phillies up once Burnett was yanked. Cesar Jimenez, Luis Garcia, Jake Diekman and Justin De Fratus pitched 4 2/3 scoreless innings before Gonzalez allowed the homer to Donaldson in the 10th.

The Phillies (71-85) travel to Miami to face the Marlins beginning Tuesday night. They have a three-game set with the Marlins before returning home to Citizens Bank Park on Friday to finish the season with a three-game set against the Braves. METRO

LEGAL NOTICES

STATE OF MAINE
CUMBERLAND, ss
PROBATE COURT

NOTICE TO PUTATIVE FATHER ABOUT PENDING ADOPTION

In the Matter of the Adoption Petition of: Zane Alley

This notice is directed to Justin DiPietro 29 Violette Avenue Waterville Me 04901 that Angela Alley wishes to consent to the adoption of her child named Zane Alley who was born on January 23, 2014 or to execute a surrender and release of her rights to the child which will allow the child to be adopted. She has named you as the father of said child. You have not consented to the adoption according to the records of this Court. The adoption, consent or the surrender and release has been filed and is pending in the Probate Court in Cumberland County.

If you wish to establish your parental rights to this child, you must, within 20 days from the date this notice was served, file a petition with the Judge of the Probate Court in Cumberland County requesting that the judge grant to you parental rights of this child.

You must file your petition with the Court in Cumberland County Probate Court at 142 Federal Street Portland Me 04101 and send a copy of the petition to the mother at 28 State Street Gorham Maine 04038.

If you file a petition within 20 days you must include an allegation that you are in fact the birth father of the child and the Judge will set a date for hearing to determine whether you shall have parental rights to this child.

If you do not petition within 20 days, the Judge shall rule that you have no parental rights and that only the birth mother of the child need consent to the adoption or execute a surrender and release. Upon such a ruling, you lose all rights to prove that you are the child's father or that you have any legal relationship with this child.

If you want an attorney to represent you and you are unable to afford one, the court will appoint and pay for an attorney for you. You must come to this court in person or apply in writing for the appointment of an attorney within 20 days of service of this notice. If you have applied for the appointment of a lawyer, the court will extend the time in which you must petition to establish your parental rights until your attorney has had an opportunity to review this case and advise you.
